

Executive Training Programs

Your challenge - What are typical situations in which you might require our assistance?

- Training & development activities attended by our staff are not linked to our corporate objectives
- Our Management Team often complains that training & development activities attended by their team members have not added any value to the departmental operations
- Our staff often complain that training & development activities attended have not met their expectations
- We are not in a position to estimate the actual return on investment from our training & development initiatives

Our solutions - What can we offer?

- Offer targeted in-house training programmes, based on our clients' needs
- Offer technical and soft skills training programmes, across the spectrum of our expertise, in a range of areas, such as Financial Management & Accounting, Tax, VAT, Management & Leadership, Performance Management, Communication, Team Building, Decision Making, Negotiation Skills, etc
- All of our trainers have attended the internationally recognised Deloitte Global Train-the-Trainer programme
- Prior to designing the Training Programme, we determine the training needs and objectives, as well as the associated expected results with the client and we then request from participants to complete a pre-seminar questionnaire
- During the Training Programme, in order for participants to get the maximum benefit, we actively involve participants and we adjust our approach to fit their learning style
- At the end of the Training Programme, we help participants to design personal plans on the actions to be taken

Aim high.... We can take you there

What are the benefits of our approach?

- Provide training programmes which have real life practical applicability, based on the know-how of Deloitte internationally, as well as on the vast training experience and expertise of our trainers
- Our training programmes are designed to react swiftly to market trends and provide up to the minute information on key issues
- We believe that 'one size fits none' and that is why we offer in-house, tailor-made training programmes
- Ensure Return On your Investment by:
 - Designing our training programmes based on your needs, objectives and expected associated results
 - Requesting participants to outline the expected outcome on their performance following attendance on a training
 - Requesting participants to complete an action plan, indicating the specific actions to be taken after attending a training programme, which you can then follow up

Unlock your organisation's potential through Deloitte's training programmes
