Transfer Pricing: Deadlines to Preserve Taxpayer Rights to Request Competent Authority Assistance to Relieve Double Taxation

Global Transfer Pricing Alert 2016-035

Transfer pricing continues to be the top enforcement priority of tax authorities around the world, and one of the major risks for many multinationals. With foreign tax authorities aggressively asserting transfer pricing deficiencies, many taxpayers are receiving proposed adjustments regarding intercompany transactions. For this reason, it is imperative that taxpayers understand the actions required to preserve the right to request competent authority assistance to relieve double taxation.

Competent authority assistance for double taxation is provided under the mutual agreement procedure (MAP) article of the relevant tax treaty. To obtain relief from double taxation, the United States and other countries' competent authorities must be notified of the proposed adjustments, or a request for MAP assistance must be filed, within specified deadlines under many US tax treaties. For example, in the case of an IRS-initiated adjustment, the foreign tax authority may require notification, and, in the case of a foreign-initiated adjustment, the IRS may need to be notified. Failure to make the appropriate filings can result in the IRS or foreign tax authority denying the taxpayer's request for competent authority relief to eliminate double taxation. In addition, taxpayers generally should not sign closing or similar agreements with the tax authorities if they intend to request competent authority assistance, because doing so may limit their ability to obtain relief from double taxation.

In 2015, 78 percent of new US competent authority requests received related to foreign-initiated adjustments.¹ Given the ever-increasing aggressiveness of foreign tax authorities, taxpayers must be vigilant regarding the treaty deadlines to protect their right to request competent authority assistance. These treaty deadlines can and do differ from domestic statutes of limitations, and taxpayers must take protective actions to keep recourse to competent authority open. The fact that the domestic statute of limitations may still be open for transfer pricing assessments in one or both of the affected countries is not determinative of the availability of competent authority assistance.

Taxpayers who are either subject to a foreign tax audit or who have a reasonable expectation that they may be subject to a foreign tax audit should review the relevant treaty timelines and consider taking all necessary protective measures. Taxpayers do not need to wait until the conclusion of a transfer pricing audit to take such measures.

Failure to notify the IRS (or foreign tax authority) within the specified time frames will likely preclude the taxpayer from seeking competent authority relief from double taxation, and may also give rise to issues regarding the creditability of foreign taxes. See Procter & Gamble Co. v. U.S. (S.D. Ohio, Case No. 1:08-cv-00608, defendant's motion for summary judgment granted 7/6/10).

The table below summarizes the notification/filing requirements and applicable time limitations for requesting competent authority assistance between the United States and all of its current treaty partners. Some U.S. treaties (those with Canada, Finland, Jamaica, Mexico, Netherlands, and Turkey) require notification to the tax authority that did not propose the adjustment within a certain number of years of the taxpayer's tax year end or the filing of a tax return. In addition to the original notification, the IRS requires annual notification updates. The recently issued updates to the IRS competent authority procedures – Rev. Proc. 2015-40 – changed the due date for such updates beginning in 2016. The new due date for notification updates is no later than the date on which the taxpayer timely files a tax return for such taxable year.

Taxpayers should consult with their tax advisors to evaluate the relevant provisions of the applicable treaty and their specific application to the taxpayer's facts and circumstances.
