

International Tax Brazil Highlights 2026

Updated May 2026

Recent developments

For the latest tax developments relating to Brazil, see Deloitte tax@hand.

Investment basics

Currency: Brazilian Real (BRL)

Foreign exchange control: Companies generally do not need prior authorization for a foreign exchange transaction, although a record of the transaction must be registered electronically, in certain cases, with the Brazilian Central Bank (BACEN).

Accounting principles/financial statements: Publicly traded companies and nonpublic companies with assets exceeding BRL 240 million or gross revenue exceeding BRL 300 million must have external auditors. Only publicly traded companies must publish annual accounting reports using Brazilian GAAP (which follows IFRS). Annual reports, balance sheets, income statements, and minutes of annual meetings must be published in the official gazette and another well-known newspaper.

Principal business entities: These are the limited liability company (LTDA) and corporation (SA). Branches are rare, since they may operate in Brazil only through a specific ministerial decree.

Corporate taxation

Rates
Corporate income tax rate	15% (34% including surtax)
Branch tax rate	15% (34% including surtax)
Capital gains tax rate	15% (34% including surtax)

Residence: A company is resident in Brazil if it is incorporated in Brazil.

Basis: Resident companies are taxed on worldwide income. A nonresident company is subject to Brazilian taxation only if it carries out certain sales activities in Brazil through an agent or representative that is domiciled in Brazil and that has the power to legally bind the nonresident company, or through a domestic branch of the nonresident company. A representative acting as an agent will not create a taxable presence in Brazil if the final transaction is concluded abroad by the nonresident company. Nonresidents are taxed only on Brazilian-source income. Branches are taxed in the same way as subsidiaries.

Taxable income: The basic corporate income tax (IRPJ) applies to operating profits, which are defined as gross operating receipts, less the cost of goods sold or services rendered; commercial, administrative, and operating expenses; and other charges, reserves, and losses authorized by law.

A deduction is allowed for interest on net equity paid or credited to shareholders, limited to the higher of 50% of the current year's net profit or 50% of the company's retained earnings. The amount available for the deduction is computed by multiplying the company's net equity balance by an official remuneration rate (long term interest rate) published by BACEN.

Resident companies may opt annually to be taxed on the actual or presumed profit method. The "lucro real" method is based on actual annual or quarterly taxable income, whereas the "lucro presumido" method, which is available if certain requirements are satisfied, is based on quarterly estimated or deemed taxable income.

Qualifying small enterprises with annual gross income not exceeding BRL 4.8 million may elect to be taxed under a simplified regime (for purposes of corporate income taxes, indirect taxes, and social security contributions).

Rate

General

The statutory corporate income tax rate is 15%. However, taking into account the surtax and the social contribution tax (see "Surtax," below), the combined nominal rate is 34%.

Surtax

In addition to the statutory corporate income tax rate of 15%, a 10% surtax is imposed on annual net income in excess of BRL 240,000, and a 9% social contribution tax (CSLL) is levied on adjusted net income. For financial institutions, the CSLL rate is 20%. Insurance companies, foreign exchange brokers, credit cooperatives, and other similar entities are subject to a 15% CSLL rate.

Alternative minimum tax

There is no alternative minimum tax.

Global minimum tax (Pillar Two)

Brazil has implemented rules that generally are in line with the global anti-base erosion (GloBE) or "Pillar Two" model rules published by the OECD/G20 Inclusive Framework on BEPS that are designed to ensure a global minimum level of taxation of 15% for multinational enterprise groups with annual consolidated revenue of at least EUR 750 million. Brazil has also implemented a tax intended to be a qualified domestic minimum top-up tax (sometimes referred to as a QDMTT), applicable for fiscal years beginning on or after 1 January 2025. The OECD's central record of legislation with transitional qualified status for global minimum tax purposes includes Brazil's domestic minimum top-up tax as a QDMTT.

Taxation of dividends: Dividends received from resident companies (and income derived from premiums on the issuance of new shares) are not included in taxable income. As from 1 January 2026, a 10% withholding tax on dividends paid to nonresidents (and certain resident individuals) applies (see "Dividends" under "Withholding tax," below).

Capital gains: Capital gains are treated the same way as ordinary income (subject to restrictions on the offsetting of capital losses against ordinary profits in certain cases).

Capital gains derived by a nonresident on foreign direct investments are subject to tax at progressive rates ranging from 15% to 22.5% (15% on gains that do not exceed BRL 5 million; 17.5% on gains over BRL 5 million up to BRL 10 million; 20% on gains over BRL 10 million up to BRL 30 million; and 22.5% on gains over BRL 30 million). A 25% rate applies to gains derived by a resident of a tax haven.

Foreign investors in the financial market (i.e., portfolio investors) are subject to different rates and exemptions.

Losses: Losses must be segregated as "operating" or "nonoperating." Nonoperating losses may be set off only against nonoperating gains. Tax losses incurred in one fiscal year may be carried forward indefinitely, but the amount of the carryforward that can be used is limited to 30% of taxable income in each carryforward year. The carry back of losses is not permitted. Taxpayers may not use losses where they underwent a change in both business activities and ownership between the dates the losses were generated and used (e.g., certain restructurings or reorganizations).

Foreign tax relief: A foreign tax credit for qualifying foreign taxes paid is available to offset the IRPJ and CSLL imposed on foreign-source income. Further limitations on the credit include a per-company limitation for foreign subsidiaries (some consolidation of branches and of lower-tier subsidiaries is allowed) and foreign branches.

Participation exemption: There is no specific participation exemption regime, although dividends received from other resident companies are not included in taxable income (see “Taxation of dividends,” above).

Holding company regime: There is no holding company regime.

Incentives: Research and development (R&D) projects and information technology qualify for some direct assistance and tax relief. An exclusion is allowed from the corporate income tax base of 60% to 100% of R&D project expenses. The federal excise tax (IPI) on the acquisition of assets is reduced, and accelerated depreciation is allowed for R&D assets.

Subsidized financing is available to purchase capital goods, invest in infrastructure projects, and build ships.

Export sectors qualify for duty drawback on imports, and for special financing through an export promotion program. Exporters of manufactured goods are entitled to a tax refund of a percentage of the value of their export revenue, depending on the type of goods exported.

There also are regional incentives for federal and state taxes (subject to a phase-out due to recent VAT reform), granted by the Brazilian government.

Compliance for corporations

Tax year: The tax year is the calendar year.

Consolidated returns: Consolidated returns are not permitted; each company must file a separate return.

Filing and payment: Every business entity in Brazil (including corporations, special purpose entities, consortia, and branches of foreign companies) must file an annual income tax return for the previous calendar year by the last business day of July. Corporate income taxes (IRPJ and CSLL) usually are due annually with monthly or quarterly advance payments; any excess tax paid may offset future taxes (under certain circumstances). A simplified regime is available for smaller companies, whereby taxpayers remit corporate income taxes quarterly (based on gross revenue).

Penalties: Late payment of IRPJ and CSLL is subject to penalties and interest.

Rulings: While there is no advance tax ruling system, Brazil allows formal consultations on the application of tax laws to the taxpayer’s specific facts. The decisions are binding on all taxpayers, with the possibility of an appeal depending on the existence of inconsistent separate decisions, in which case an affected taxpayer may request a final statement that binds all taxpayers that have received decisions on the same facts/law.

Individual taxation

Rates
Individual income tax rate	Taxable income (BRL)	Rate
	Up to 29,145	0%
	29,146–33,920	7.5%
	33,921–45,013	15%
	45,014–55,976	22.5%
	Over 55,976	27.5%

Capital gains tax rate	Progressive rates from 15% to 22.5%

Residence: In addition to Brazilian citizens, the following individuals are considered tax residents: naturalized foreigners; foreigners who are permanent residents; foreigners who hold a permanent visa; foreigners who have a temporary visa with a local employment contract from the date of arrival; and foreigners who hold a temporary visa, but no local employment contract, after completing 183 days of residence in Brazil within any 12-month period.

Basis: Residents are taxed on their worldwide income. Nonresidents are taxed only on Brazilian-source income.

Taxable income: Taxable income includes wages, salaries, bonuses, consulting fees and commissions, premiums, directors' fees, and dividends and interest from foreign sources (but see "Dividends" under "Withholding tax," below). It also includes most allowances connected with employment. The formal profit sharing paid by a Brazilian employer to employees is exempt only for National Institute for Social Security and severance fund purposes under certain conditions.

Rates: No tax is imposed on annual income up to BRL 29,145. Tax is imposed as follows: 7.5% on income from BRL 29,146 up to and including BRL 33,920; 15% on income from BRL 33,921 up to and including BRL 45,013; 22.5% on income from BRL 45,014 up to and including BRL 55,976; and 27.5% on income exceeding BRL 55,976.

As from 1 January 2026, taxable income subject to monthly individual income tax withholding and annual withholding calculations is eligible for a tax reduction based on two brackets (annual amounts):

- Up to BRL 600,000.00: total tax reduction;
- From BRL 600,000.01 up to BRL 1,200,000.00: regressive tax reduction; and
- Over BRL 1,200,000.00: 10% tax reduction.

Nonresidents who are residents of a jurisdiction that does not have an active tax treaty with Brazil are taxed at a flat rate of 25% (on earned income) or 15%.

Capital gains: Capital gains are subject to progressive rates ranging from 15% to 22.5%. Different rates apply for foreign assets.

Deductions and allowances: Instead of itemizing deductions, taxpayers may elect the standard annual deduction of 20% of taxable income, up to a maximum of BRL 17,640.

Deductions and allowances may include (subject to additional restrictions): social security taxes paid by the employee; contributions to private Brazilian pension plans (up to 12% of gross income); alimony or pension payments under a court order; expenses incurred by self-employed individuals to generate business income or maintain the source of such income; a standard deduction per dependent up to BRL 2,275; educational expenses, up to an annual limit of BRL 3,561; unreimbursed payments for health insurance plans and medical, dental, psychotherapy, and physical therapy expenses; and documented contributions to approved Brazilian cultural, artistic, and audio-visual activities, and donations to Brazilian child and youth councils, up to 6% of the tax due or 3% if the donation is made at the time the tax return is filed.

Foreign tax relief: Foreign tax relief may be available depending on the existence of a tax treaty or reciprocal treatment by the other jurisdiction (regardless of a treaty).

Compliance for individuals

Tax year: The tax year is the calendar year.

Filing status: There is an option for married individuals to file a joint tax return for the household.

Filing and payment: Tax is paid monthly, either through withholding from salary, or by advance payment for the self-employed. Monthly advance payments also are required for income received outside of Brazil by Brazilian tax residents.

All residents who are subject to income tax must file a final annual tax return by the last business day of May of the following year. The return must include a statement indicating all property and rights (domestic or foreign).

In addition to filing an income tax return, a resident individual who owns more than USD 1 million in assets abroad on 31 December must report these assets to BACEN by 5 April each year. Resident individuals who own more than USD 100 million in assets on 31 March, 30 June, 30 September, and/or 31 December of a given year also must report these assets to BACEN by 5 June, 5 September, and 5 December of the given year, and 5 April of the following year, respectively.

Penalties: Late filing of the income tax return will result in a penalty of 1% per month on the tax due (up to a maximum of 20% of the tax due). A minimum penalty of BRL 166 applies if no tax is due. A maximum penalty of BRL 250,000 applies for the late or incorrect filing of the BACEN return.

Rulings: While there is no advance tax ruling system, Brazil allows formal consultations on the application of tax laws to the taxpayer's specific facts. The decisions are binding on all taxpayers, with the possibility of an appeal depending on the existence of inconsistent separate decisions, in which case an affected taxpayer may request a final statement that binds all taxpayers that have received decisions on the same facts/law.

Withholding tax

Rates
Type of payment	Residents		Nonresidents
	Company	Individual	Company	Individual
Dividends	0%	0%/10%	10%	10%
Interest	15%-22.5%	15%-22.5%	15%/25%	15%/25%
Royalties	0%	0%	15%/25%	15%/25%

Dividends: No withholding tax is imposed on dividends paid to resident companies. A 10% withholding tax applies to dividends paid to resident individuals where the individual earns dividend income over BRL 50,000 per month from a single legal entity. Dividends paid to nonresidents (but excluding certain foreign pensions, governmental entities, and sovereign wealth funds) are subject to a 10% withholding tax, unless the rate is reduced under an applicable tax treaty. The law allows for a tax credit for nonresidents if the effective corporate tax (IRPJ and CSLL) rates, along with the 10% withholding tax, exceed the nominal corporate tax (IRPJ and CSLL) rates (generally 34% if the taxpayer is not a financial institution or similar entity); the excess may give rise to a tax credit for the nonresident.

Interest: Interest paid to residents is subject to regressive withholding tax rates as follows: 22.5% on interest due for a term of up to 180 days; 20% on interest due for a term between 181 days and 360 days; 17.5% on interest due for a term between 361 days and 720 days; and 15% on interest due for a term greater than 720 days.

Interest paid to nonresidents is subject to a 15% withholding tax rate, unless the rate is reduced under an applicable tax treaty. The rate is 25% if the recipient is resident in a tax haven.

Interest on net equity is treated as interest for withholding tax purposes.

Royalties: No withholding tax is imposed on royalty payments to a resident. The withholding tax rate on royalty payments to nonresidents is 15%, unless the rate is reduced under an applicable tax treaty. The rate is 25% if the recipient is resident in a tax haven.

Fees for technical services: Certain professional service payments made to resident companies are subject to a 1.5% rate of withholding tax (as well as 1% CSLL, and 3% COFINS and 0.65% PIS (federal social contributions on gross income)). No withholding tax is imposed for fees for technical services paid to a resident individual.

The withholding tax rate on technical service and technical assistance fees, administrative assistance fees, and similar payments to nonresidents is 15%, unless the rate is reduced under an applicable tax treaty. The rate is 25% if the recipient is resident in a tax haven.

Branch remittance tax: There is no branch remittance tax.

Anti-avoidance rules

Transfer pricing: Transfer pricing legislation is in accordance with the OECD guidelines. The rules, among other things, (i) require royalty agreements to be subject to the transfer pricing rules; (ii) limit the deductibility of royalty payments and payments for technical, scientific, and administrative assistance, to entities resident or domiciled in low-tax jurisdictions or in jurisdictions with preferential tax regimes, when the deductions result in double nontaxation; and (iii) allow the remittance of royalties abroad regardless of any registration with BACEN or the National Institute of Industrial Property.

The Brazilian Revenue Service has published regulations on the application of the transfer pricing rules on adjustments to the calculation bases for corporate income tax purposes and to the deductibility of payments relating to royalties and technical, scientific, and administrative assistance. Other items include the mandatory digital transmission of the master file and local file, as well as the supporting documentation, within three months of the deadline for submitting the annual tax return (i.e., 31 October 2026 for calendar year 2025). Taxpayers whose total value of controlled operations in the previous year is less than BRL 15 million are exempt from submitting the master file and local file. Specific information on transactions with related parties is also required in the annual income tax return.

Interest deduction limitations: Under the thin capitalization rules, interest paid to related parties that are not located in a tax haven jurisdiction and that do not benefit from a preferential tax regime may be deducted on an accrual basis for corporate income tax purposes only if (i) the expenses meet the general requirements of deductibility (necessary, usual, and duly documented) and (ii) both of the following thresholds are met: (a) the related party debt-to-equity ratio does not exceed 2:1, calculated based on the proportion of a related party's debt to direct equity investment made by the related party and (b) the overall related party debt-to-equity ratio does not exceed 2:1, calculated based on the proportion of total related party debt to total direct equity investment made by related parties.

Interest paid to an entity or individual located in a tax haven or that benefits from a preferential tax regime (regardless of whether the parties are related) may be deducted only if the expenses (i) are necessary for the company's activities and (ii) both of the following thresholds are met: (a) the amount of the resident entity's indebtedness to the tax haven/preferential tax regime resident does not exceed 30% of the net equity of the resident entity and (b) the resident entity's total indebtedness to all entities located in a tax haven jurisdiction or benefiting from a preferential tax regime does not exceed 30% of the net equity of the resident entity.

Excess interest is treated as a nondeductible expense for IRPJ and CSLL purposes.

The transfer pricing rules affecting cross-border loans apply, as do the general requirements for deductibility.

Controlled foreign companies: Profits earned by controlled foreign companies (CFCs) of resident entities are included in the base for calculating the IRPJ and CSLL liability of the resident controlling company on 31 December of each calendar year. Under certain conditions, profits earned by foreign affiliates (noncontrolled subsidiaries) will be taxed only upon distribution.

Provided certain requirements are met, taxpayers have the option to make an irrevocable election each calendar year to consolidate the profits and losses of CFCs through 2029 and to carry forward any losses.

A resident controlling company, depending on its business sector, may be entitled to a 9% deemed credit through 2029 on profits earned abroad by its CFCs. The credit may be used to offset the income tax related to the CFC's profits included in the controlling company's taxable income.

Resident individuals who control certain foreign entities are subject to tax on the undistributed profits of such entities.

Anti-hybrid rules: Specific rules limit the deductibility of certain payments—such as royalties or service fees—based on how these payments are treated at the level of the foreign recipient. According to this specific rule, a deduction may be disallowed if (i) the payment is deducted in Brazil but not included as taxable income by the beneficiary abroad; (ii) there is a double deduction for the same expense; or (iii) there is an imported mismatch. In these cases, royalties or service fees could be rendered nondeductible under Brazilian tax law.

Economic substance requirements: Brazil's tax authorities have provided the definition of the term "substantial economic activities" for purposes of determining whether certain Danish and Dutch regimes should be deemed privileged tax regimes and, therefore, be included on Brazil's "gray list." A foreign holding company in Denmark or the Netherlands will be deemed to carry out substantial economic activities if it has the appropriate operating capacity to meet its corporate purposes, including having a sufficient number of qualified employees and adequate physical premises to effectively manage its operations.

Disclosure requirements: Related party transactions and CFC information must be disclosed in the annual income tax return. Country-by-country reporting requirements, aligned with OECD standards, also apply. Tax incentives, benefits, or exemptions must be disclosed monthly in a "DIRBI" return.

Exit tax: There is no exit tax.

General anti-avoidance rule: General anti-avoidance rules apply. Under the rules, any amount paid, credited, delivered, used, or remitted directly or indirectly to an entity or individual incorporated or resident in a tax haven jurisdiction, or benefiting from a preferential tax regime, may be deducted only if the taxpayer can identify the beneficial "recipient" of the proceeds; provide evidence that the entity or individual has the operational capacity to carry out the transaction for which the payment is made; and submit documentation showing the purchase price paid and the receipt of the goods, rights, or the use of services (see "Transfer pricing" and "Interest deduction limitations," above, for additional rules specific to interest payments). In addition, ultimate beneficial owner disclosure rules apply to certain taxpayers.

Indirect taxes on goods and services

State VAT (ICMS): ICMS is a state VAT imposed on the circulation and import of goods and the provision of interstate and intermunicipal transportation and communications services. ICMS is levied at rates ranging from 4% to 25%. ICMS calculations must be kept in proper fiscal books. Return filing and payment are due monthly.

Federal excise tax (IPI): IPI is a federal excise tax imposed on the manufacture of goods and the import of goods into Brazil. Exports are exempt. IPI rates depend on the type of product, with an average rate of 20%. Return filing and payment are due monthly.

Municipal tax (ISS): ISS is a municipal tax imposed on the supply and import of services (other than services subject to ICMS) with rates ranging from 2% to 5%. Exports of services may be exempt under certain conditions. Return filing and payment are due monthly.

Federal social contributions (PIS/COFINS): The PIS/PASEP (social integration program) and COFINS (tax for social security financing) are federal taxes imposed on gross revenue (but not considered an income tax). Where a resident entity pays corporate income tax based on actual income, the PIS/PASEP and COFINS are 1.65% and 7.6%, respectively. Where a resident entity pays corporate income tax under the deemed taxable income regime, the PIS/PASEP and COFINS are 0.65% and 3%, respectively. In the former case, the resident entity may use input PIS/PASEP and COFINS credits to offset its PIS/PASEP and COFINS liabilities. Export transactions are exempt if the related funds have entered Brazil. With respect to the importation of goods and services, PIS/PASEP and COFINS generally are applicable at a rate of 11.75% and 9.25%, respectively. PIS/PASEP and COFINS are paid monthly, with monthly returns required.

Other: Brazil is currently implementing the necessary legal measures for an overall VAT reform as from 2026. Under the reform, a dual VAT is being implemented, with a transition period of seven years, and comprises a federal VAT (CBS) (which replaces PIS/COFINS) and a state and municipal VAT (IBS) (which replaces ICMS and ISS), as well as a new federal selective tax (IS). Under the reform, nonresident service providers and internet platform providers are required to register for VAT in Brazil under certain circumstances. The CBS and IBS are being tested nationwide in 2026 and generally not effectively collected, but companies must show the calculated amounts on invoices using test rates. The standard 2026 test rates are 0.9% (CBS) and 0.1% (IBS). E-invoices must also include additional CBS/IBS data fields (e.g., tax classification and place of supply). Beginning in August 2026, companies that do not include CBS and IBS information in e-invoices may be subject to a 1% penalty on transaction value, even though the reported amounts in 2026 are informational only and do not trigger actual tax collection.

Other taxes on corporations and individuals

Unless otherwise stated, the taxes in this section apply both to companies and individuals and are imposed at the national level.

Social contributions and payroll taxes: Employers are required to contribute 8% of wages to each employee's deferred salary account for the severance fund, 20% of an employee's wages to the public pension system (National Institute for Social Security), and a maximum of 8.8% for other social security taxes. Employees contribute 7.5% to 14% to social security, depending on their salary categories.

Capital duty: There is no capital duty.

Real property tax: The real property tax (IPTU) is collected annually by the municipality where the property is located and is calculated on a deemed "sales price" of the property. The tax rate varies by municipality but generally is in the range of 0.3% to 1.5%. The rural property tax (ITR) is an annual federal tax assessed on the ownership of rural property at rates ranging from 0.03% to 20%, depending on the region and the use of the property.

Transfer tax: The transfer tax (ITBI) is a municipal real estate transfer tax due upon the transfer of title to real property (land and buildings). The tax rate is progressive from 2% to 6% calculated, broadly, on the market value. The buyer is responsible for payment of the tax.

Stamp duty: There is no stamp duty.

Net wealth/worth tax: There is no net wealth tax or net worth tax.

Inheritance/estate tax: For individuals, states tax inheritances at progressive rates of 2% up to 8%.

Other

Financial transactions tax

The financial transactions tax (IOF) is imposed on foreign exchange, credit/loan, and security transactions. The general rate for most foreign exchange transactions is 3.5%. A maximum rate of 3.38% (calculated using specific methods and conditions) applies on the principal amount of domestic loans (where the lender is a legal entity). For security transactions, the rates depend on the type of transaction (ranging from 0% to a maximum daily rate of 1.5%).

Levy on importation of technical services and royalties

A 10% levy (CIDE) is imposed on the importation of technical services and royalties.

Tax treaties: Brazil has concluded over 40 tax treaties. Brazil signed the Multilateral Convention to Implement Tax Treaty Related Measures to Prevent Base Erosion and Profit Shifting (BEPS MLI) on 20 October 2025.
