Global Principles of Business Conduct

A message from Global leadership

Deloitte’s commitment to quality and integrity is foundational to everything we do, as we make an impact that matters for Deloitte clients, our people, and our communities.

Our Global Principles of Business Conduct (“Global Code”) outlines Deloitte’s ethical commitments and expectations for Deloitte people globally, providing for a strong foundation built upon indelible principles. At Deloitte, ethical culture and values are at the heart of our business, and we take our individual and collective responsibility to serve and uphold the public interest very seriously. Driving a comprehensive and robust approach to ethics and elevating our culture of integrity helps Deloitte people incorporate ethics and integrity in all that they do and make their best professional decisions.

We ask all Deloitte people to read these commitments, and to understand their significance. Deloitte firms have their own codes of conduct, which are based on the Global Code and incorporate local requirements. Together, these expectations inform the actions we take, every day.

Deloitte clients and stakeholders continue to trust and expect our people to do what is right. The daily decisions we make help to build and sustain that trust. We each play an important role in maintaining our ethical culture –one where people feel comfortable in seeking advice and speaking up, and one in which we actively listen and support those who ask questions or raise concerns.

With that in mind, it is essential that each of us does our part to continue building a culture that aligns with our Global Code –because for Deloitte, it starts with integrity.

Our Shared Values

Our Shared Values are a set of core principles that guide our collective behavior

They set the expectations we have for one another and define how we, as stewards of Deloitte, should behave. They unite us across cultures and geographies. And, importantly, they help us earn the trust and respect of our clients, our people, and our communities.

The Deloitte environment is complex, spanning cultures, businesses, and geographies. However, Deloitte's Shared Values remain constant, and within them the belief that serving with integrity—doing the right thing—will help guide our decision making.

- Debbie Rheder, Deloitte Global Chief Ethics Officer

Our Global Code

The Global Code outlines the commitments that each of us make. It is based on our Shared Values and reflects our core belief that, at Deloitte, ethics and integrity are fundamental and not negotiable.

Our Global Code applies across the Deloitte network* and provides the foundation for how our people behave. Each firm in the Deloitte network commits to the Global Code and, as appropriate, builds on it through more detailed codes of conduct.

In addition to local codes, the Global Code is supplemented by Deloitte firm ethics programs, which provide support to build and sustain ethical judgment and decision-making skills in all Deloitte people. Each Deloitte firm has ethics training for its people and channels for consulting on difficult matters or reporting suspected misconduct.

With strong leadership support, the Global Code and Deloitte firm ethics programs define Deloitte's approach to building and sustaining a culture of integrity.

Our personal role in upholding our Global Code

Acting in accordance with the Global Code is a responsibility for all people at Deloitte. Each of us is called upon to know, understand and comply with the Global Code. Our leaders, across the Deloitte network, are expected to promote and encourage ethical behavior and decision-making and be seen as ethical role models. Additionally, we all share the responsibility to speak up when we become aware of violations of our Global Code.

We are conscious that our behavior, both inside and outside of the Deloitte workplace, in both a professional and a personal capacity, can affect our colleagues, stakeholders, and reputation. We commit to upholding these principles and treating others with respect at all times.

All Deloitte people should remain aware of circumstances that may challenge our ability to comply with the Global Code. When faced with an ethical dilemma or circumstance that is inconsistent with our Global Code, we should consider all available information to assess the situation, use professional judgment, consult with relevant stakeholders as appropriate and, where necessary, take action, including applying appropriate safeguards. We should also be mindful of our own potential biases and any new or additional information which might lead to additional action being required.

As an organization, Deloitte commits to abiding by the Global Code and expects the same commitment to quality and integrity from its suppliers, clients, contractors, and alliance partners and technology relationships, as described in our Supplier Code of Conduct and Responsible Business Practices Statement.

Please note that Deloitte Global does not provide services to clients and therefore references to clients in the Global Code refer to Deloitte firm clients*

Deloitte Speak Up

Our related commitments to our people and our clients

Our leaders are the face of Deloitte to our people, clients, and communities. They set the tone for how we treat each other and how we uphold our ethical commitments.

Leaders, across the Deloitte network, are expected to champion and uphold our ethical culture. They are a key resource to consult on ethical matters as they arise.

Our responsibility to speak up

At Deloitte, everything starts with integrity. Our businesses are built on trust, and we are all responsible for protecting, preserving, and enhancing the Deloitte brand. No matter their role, our people are key in building and strengthening Deloitte's ethical culture every day, and we rely on each other to stand up for our values when something doesn't feel right.

We foster and support a "speak up" environment that encourages our people to do what is right, even when it may be more challenging. We are stewards of Deloitte's future and must lead by example with our people, with our clients, and in our communities.

All Deloitte people are responsible for reporting any noncompliance or suspected noncompliance with applicable laws and regulations, or potential fraud, illegal or unethical act, or other violation of Deloitte policy that they encounter or are made aware of – whether that be committed by a colleague, client, supplier, contractor, or others associated with Deloitte. Further details of the speak up process can be found here.

Our nature to consult

No one at Deloitte should have to navigate a difficult situation alone.

Consultation goes to the heart of the Deloitte culture, and helps prevent our people from having to resolve a difficult ethical situation alone. Individuals are encouraged to consult with team leaders or others in their chain of command, Ethics, or Talent/HR with questions. In addition, formal ethics reporting channels are available in every Deloitte firm, and at the Global level, and offer the opportunity to report or consult anonymously.

At Deloitte, we believe a strong ethics training curriculum plays a vital role in preparing our people to navigate ethical dilemmas – to understand the importance of consultation, and to have the courage to speak up in the face of misconduct.

Training programs include online courses, classroom and virtual programs, and facilitator-led interactive case discussions, all focusing on reinforcing ethical awareness, sensitivity, judgment, and decision-making skills. Ethics education is delivered to our people as both standalone trainings and embedded in other courses across various points throughout their career.
