

Next Generation CMO Programme

The Deloitte Next Generation CMO Programme prepares marketing leaders of the future for the role's diverse and ever-changing challenges.

A note from our Programme Director

Marketing has never been more important. Understanding customer needs and delivering them profitably has always been the goal. However, achieving this is increasingly hard. There are more communication channels than ever, customer expectations are higher, businesses often operate across industries, geographies and segments, there are multiple macro challenges, a deluge of new technologies to contend with and an ever-growing suite of functional responsibilities.

Marketing is at the heart of business, responsible for driving growth. It is also the custodian for customer experience requiring alignment across all functions. The skills demanded of a CMO are therefore broad – part catalyst energising the organisation, part strategist shaping the way forward, part steward ensuring control, part operator driving efficiency and effectiveness.

“ Powerful content and connections that will shape your career ”

This programme is designed to kickstart senior marketing leaders' careers. Through interactive plenary, team, panel and breakout sessions, delegates will have the opportunity to hone their leadership, collaboration and influencing skills needed to navigate the boardroom. They will learn from peers, experienced CMOs, other C-Suite members and from our own leadership and business transformation experience.

Each cohort of c.20 participants is exclusively for high-performing, high-potential individuals with the ambition and capability to be CMO in the next 2-5 years - a rare chance to network, learn, reflect and grow.

Objectives and Course Benefits

The Programme aims to provide participants with:

- Access to a network of high-performing peers, seasoned CMOs and C-Suite executives from across a range of industries
- Insight from C-suite executives on how to make the transition to senior marketing leadership, negotiate the boardroom and embrace individual leadership styles
- Interactive sessions to share ideas and challenges on key issues that affect participants, their teams, careers and businesses
- Practical skills for new and emerging marketing leaders that can be immediately applied in the workplace
- Leadership level insights into the latest Thought Leadership and practical business examples of the successful exploitation of emerging technologies.

Attendees will also be invited to join the growing alumni network of Marketing Leaders from previous cohorts, to connect with directly or through Deloitte-hosted social events.

Eligibility criteria

The Next Generation CMO Programme is exclusively for those participants nominated by their current CMO who are recognised as having the capability and aspiration to become CMO within the next two to five years either as a successor to the incumbent or in another organisation. They may be currently a senior marketing leader of a division or market of the scale of a major FTSE company.
