Deloitte's Discovery & Disclosure Practice

Deloitte offers more than 25 years of experience assisting federal clients with responses to document requests the context of information disclosure (including litigation, Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) and Privacy Act (PA)), other regulatory requirements, and Congressional inquiries. We help federal agencies design and implement defensible and efficient response strategies.

Deloitte offers a range of services and technology to help your organization lay the foundation and build a next-generation disclosure program that meets the needs of all stakeholders.

Technology and analytics to assist a department or agency accurately review information disclosure requests and manage the related workflow. This includes efficient collection, culling, review, and categorization of information necessary for each response. Our case management systems have strong analytics capabilities as well as accept analytics-based information from other technology, and is adaptable to new approaches as the nature and volume of requests change.

A flexible approach to staffing and workflow based on the circumstances of each review. Our approach includes a linear workflow model to handle steady-state operations, as well as an “assembly line” capability, augmented by analytics and staffed with domain specialists, to respond to surges caused by unusual or catastrophic events.

Strike teams with subject-matter experience that can be embedded with review teams to address and respond to certain types of disclosure request or content.

Deloitte's SecureRelease™ Platform

Secure. Effective. Defensible

A challenge

In response to increasing disclosure requirements, including FOIA and PA, government agencies have committed to sharing more information with the public. Despite agencies' efforts to be more open and transparent, the volume of disclosure requests and data continues to increase. Processing these requests has become a challenge as agencies are pressured to “do more with less” due to decreasing budgets and limited resources.

A solution

Deloitte's SecureRelease™ Platform is a cloud-based secure technology offered as a Software-as-a-Solution (SaaS) that combines an end-to-end workflow to handle requests for the disclosure of government records. We built our platform on Relativity's eDiscovery tool to help organizations handle large volumes of electronic data. SecureRelease™ combines FOIA/PA processing with automation and advanced analytics to increase response efficiency and amplify government personnel's ability to handle growing demands.
